No more puree!

BE A SMART MOUTH

- Good oral care is necessary for your baby's health. Baby teeth are the building blocks for eating and talking.
- Clean your baby's teeth and gums with a clean, soft cloth after each feeding. Use a baby toothbrush (without toothpaste) when the first tooth appears.
- Do not put your baby to bed with a bottle as this may result in severe tooth decay.
- Have your medical or dental professional look at your child's teeth by the first birthday.

Good health starts with a smart mouth.
